

ANOTHER LIFE SAVED.

Mrs. G. W. Fooks, of Salisbury, Md., wife of G. W. Fooks, Sheriff of Wicomico County, says: "I suffered with kidney complaint for eight years. It came on me gradually. I felt tired and weak, was short of breath and was troubled with bloating after eating, and my limbs were badly swollen. One doctor told me it would finally turn to Bright's disease. I was laid up at one time for three weeks. I had not taken Doan's Kidney Pills more than three days when the distressing aching across my back disappeared, and I was soon entirely cured."

Insist on Getting It.

Some grocers say they don't keep Defiance Starch. This is because they have a stock on hand of other brands containing only 12 oz in a package, which they won't be able to sell first, because Defiance contains 16 oz. for the same money.

Do you want 16 oz. instead of 12 oz. for same money? Then buy Defiance Starch. Requires no cooking.

Great Britain's Shame.

If the paupers in Great Britain were arranged in a procession, four abreast, it is computed that the procession would be nearly 100 miles in length.

Realizing the Presence of Dirt.

It is the experience of these factory inspectors that where the owners of a factory are prosecuted for keeping an unclean establishment the men that supply their milk quickly come to the conclusion that it does not pay to send milk to a factory of that kind. In many cases the defections have been so numerous that the factory has had to close and go out of business. Farmers have listened to the campaign of education long enough to begin to realize that high prices for their milk products cannot be obtained if the medium through which they reach the public is a filthy one.

One would suppose that the farmers who take their milk to a factory every day for six months would be able to realize the presence of dirt in the factory before a stranger came along and pointed it out. It is a queer thing this realization of dirt. If an inspector had not begun legal action against the factory the farmers would have been content to bring their milk to the same dirty factory year after year.

The men that could not realize the dirt in the factory till it was pointed out to them do not realize the untidy conditions of their own farms. If high prices for cheese made in a dirty factory are not to be hoped for, neither can we hope to get high prices for cheese and butter made out of milk produced in a dirty stable.

Roots and Silage.

Roots are good for cows and so is silage. In the United States silage is far cheaper than roots if we compare the cost of the dry matter in each. Careful estimates have been made of the amounts of nutrients in the form of roots and in the form of silage that can be produced on an acre of land. It has been certainly proved that twice as much nutriment can be produced in the form of corn as in the form of roots. Then, too, it costs less to raise an acre of corn than it does an acre of roots. The corn is planted, cultivated, cut and made into silage by the use of machinery, while beets have to be raised largely by hand work. Labor is a very expensive item in the United States. In some parts of the Old World, where labor is cheap, the cost of raising roots is comparatively low. Raisers and users of roots in those countries come to the United States and try to do the same thing, but soon give up the attempt. This is why all the admonitions to raise roots for cows seem to fall to the ground without bearing fruit. It is a matter of finance. It is by far more economical to get succulent feed from silage than from roots.

Root Rot of Apple Trees.

In some of the Western states root rot is becoming a great source of annoyance to the orchardists. It is found quite generally in orchards over five years of age and even in some younger ones. The disease is, however, of more frequent occurrence in new land than in old. The disease is most to be met with on poorly drained land, though it is found more or less on any kind of land. The disease is not a product of the apple orchards but exists in our native forests. Thence it spreads to the apple orchards. This is a very important reason for not setting apple orchards on recently cleared land. That the disease is highly contagious is shown by the fact that it will attack an apple tree and spread from it in all directions killing every tree it touches. The best remedy is to remove and burn infected trees, not putting other trees where the old ones have been. It takes at least three years for the disease germs to die out.
